Craft Passes Its 516th Hour
In the Air; Motor
Doing Fine

BOYS IN DIFFICULTIES

Officer Waits on Ground With Warrant; Question Over
Ship's Ownership

SKY HARBOR AIRPORT, Chicago, July 3.—(INS).—The steady drone of the City of Chicago's motor at day-break today indicated that all was well aboard the world's record endurance plane now in its fourth week of continuous flight.

The plane, with John and Kenneth Hunter at the controls, passed its 516th hour in the air at 4:40 a. m. (E. S. T.).

Wilson Herren, manager of the flight, gave out the news that the Hunter brothers, former coal miners of Sparta, Ill., are planning on flying on through the Fourth of July.

"This is an endurance flight," Herren said. "It will continue until plane and men give out."

Armed with a court summons on the fliers which he is at a loss for a means of serving, a deputy sheriff waited today with the thousands of spectators. Court action, he announced was threatening to take the City of Chicago and tie up the fliers' earnings of considerably more than $10,000.

The "Chicago We Will" Corporation, that promoted the unsuccessful attempt of the same plane to break the world record last year, has brought suit charging the plane still belongs to the Corporation and not the Hunters and their associates.

"They can fly as long as they like," the officer said. "I do my work on the ground."

Further complications were seen in regard to broadcasting which the brothers have been doing. They broadcast last night over the National Broadcasting System while the Columbia Broadcasting System is said to hold a contract with them for $1 a minute.

Attorneys are now preparing to enforce the contract, a spokesman for the Columbia System said.

Some reports of dissension between the Hunter brothers on the ground handling the refueling plane and those in the air were current at the airport, but these were denied.

Kenneth, who has kept the motor in tune from the plane's catwalk, last night crawled out on the motor hood for his evening ukelele concert. Kenneth sent down a request for a new pair of trousers, explaining that the others had worn out.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE!

(By Alice E. Di Nunzio)

Who prizes more highly any color than red?

It designates the blood that brave heroes have shed.

We have all heard of the heroes of seventy-five.

Of whose vivid memory today we revive.

We read of the blood shed, for the sake of the red!

What stands more for purity than the color of white?

Brave heroes knew Britain's act was a spite.

No true hero cursed his country in those dreadful, trying days.

For honor, for a noble deed, very well repays.

We read with delight, how they stood by the white!

What stands more for loyalty than the color of blue?

To the last, to their country, they always stood true.

Inspired by the love of their future countrymen,

Which makes us now free, for what they did then.

We read of how true, they stood by the blue!

OFFICIALS SOUND WARNING ABOUT THE DISCHARGE OF FIREWORKS HERE

Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee and Chief of Police Linford Jones, united today in sounding a warning against the indiscriminate discharge of fireworks and pistols.

Superintendent McGee is particularly interested in the prevention of fires which oftentimes are started by the reckless discharge of fireworks.

Chief Jones' interest is in the prevention of accidents and the enforcement of the law.

The following "don'ts" are given for the guidance of the public:

- 1—Don't allow your children to buy or use fireworks.
- 2—Don't buy the advertised harmless sparkler, as the core gets red hot and hundreds of children have been badly burned by same.
- 3—Don't think that you are not a patriotic citizen, because you do not allow fireworks; you are possibly saving the life of someone.
- 4—Don't fail to take children or anyone that is burned by fireworks to the nearest dispensary or physician so that the proper antitoxin to prevent blood poisoning can be administered.
- 5—Don't use any guns or pistols that are around the house, thinking they are not loaded, as the death list is very high from guns or pistols that were not supposed to be dangerous.
- 6—Don't forget that before fireworks were banned in Philadelphia scores of lives were lost and thousands were maimed and burned, and property damage was enormous due to fire.
- 7—Don't fail to celebrate Independence Day in a safe and sane manner. It is better to feel safe than sorry.

Several Streets Here Are Now Being Improved

Several of the streets of Bristol are being improved by rebuilding. The Street Committee has put into operation the new 12-ton roller recently purchased and which is equipped with a scarifier.

The committee had planned the improvement of several other streets on which work has been postponed due to the lack of curbing and gutters. It is necessary that the property owners first have curbs and gutters laid so that the surface of the street can be graded against them.

Work was started on Harrison and Garfield streets but called off when it was found that curbs and gutters were lacking.

Curbs and gutters are being placed around the property owned by the Borough at Garfield street and Farragut avenue. A sewage pumping station is located here on a triangular piece of ground.

"LET US BE FREE"

To look around you is to see that liberty, rightly owned, has brought happiness; the nation born of the genius of high adventure and lofty purpose on July 4, 1776, has been a prosperous and productive people.

On the material side we lack little. On the spiritual side we need lack no more. This liberty is a living thing, a growing plant, which is watered by aspirations of recurring ideals and grows only in the sun of utter faith in the freedom of mankind. The great experiment launched 154 years ago is never done and those who contemplate a finite state, bounded and limited by written conditions, are setting frontiers to the imagination of man and forbidding him to reach higher and higher towards the best dream of society he can conceive.

The nation was founded to be forever man's highest conception of government. It claimed and believed itself to be greatly in advance of any experiment of man up to that time. It had sense enough to recognize also that time would bring new revelation to the minds of men and thus novel terms of social relationship would be created. The nation said not "Let us be exactly this in form and that in letter," it said simply "Let us be free!"

And on the wings of that sublime phrase genius made its painful way from the ends of the earth; enterprise abandoned its ancient homestead and uprooted its attachments to become a pioneer; energy dedicated itself to carrying out cities and villages from desert and wilderness; hope lighted in the hearts of men and women remote and baffled and led them by faith to the making of a new nation.

"Let us be free!" Free to dare, free to challenge, free to invite all the world and all its dreams, false and true; confident that a nation dedicated to liberty must be stronger than any lesser theory. Liberty is a living thing; it grows or it withers; sustains its genius on the wings of daring, or smugly stifles in the mortifying atmosphere of self-complacency.

Happiness has come from liberty, rightly-owned, liberty, free, full and without reserve, courageously complete. What men need and want, liberty promises them, and must give them.

SYNOPSIS

Though fair-skinned, Dawn, mystery girl of the African tribe in British East African Protectorate, believes herself black. Tom Allen, young plantation owner, loves her. She overheard secret of her Caucasian birth. Dawn has reluctantly been consecrated as mystic bride of the black god, Malungu. She, bullying whipman, is instrumental in having Tom ordered back to England by Captain Eric, German officer in command of the seized territory. She has received a terrific beating from Tom in the jungle. He tells Dawn the secret of her white birth, hints of his sinister designs, and threatens to have her burned by informing the natives that she is white.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-ONE

That conclusion silenced the calls of the Africa-haters. Tom only smiled. He wasn't unwilling to let his comrades know how deeply and venomously he hated the whip man. "Sure," he confessed, "I'd take comfort in seeing Shep's hide with his own whip. Just as I did last night." "Last night?" The men chorused in surprise.

"Yes," was the complacent answer. "I had a date with a girl and when Shep intruded I took his lash from him and wrapped it

Ever since Dawn's bridal day the Maid had schemed to trap her in violation of her vows. She already was torn with suspicion regarding Dawn's relations with Tom Allen, but she had no way of supporting any charges against her. Tom's departure with the other prisoners had of course balked her plan for catching them together. And since Dawn was too dejected to seek excitement outside the temple the Maid's crusade was frustrated.

She decided, therefore, to strike through Shep. No longer in fear of Tom, Shep was making frequent visits to the temple. He came at ways on pretence of serving the natives, to ask Dawn as Thabo, to answer their prayers and to bestow upon them the blessings of Malungu. So sarcastically did Shep utter his supplications that Dawn could not fail to understand his threat.

He was implying that he was in a position to discredit her with the natives. Unless she complied with his demands, he hinted, he would betray her. The blind, believing natives asked and expected miraculous performances. If Dawn failed to perform these miracles she was therefore less than a goddess and deserving of death.

Always Dawn received Shep solemnly, joined him in his travesty of the jungle religion, and promised to invoke what blessings she could for her people. She never received Shep, however, unless the Maid were present. Almost intuitively she knew the Maid to possess a secret which gave the whip man fear.

Unable to escape the surveillance of the Maid, Shep's irritation grew. Because of Captain Eric's eagerness to remain at peace with the blacks, he relaxed his watch over them. They roamed at will, Shep especially. He took to haunting the jungles near the temple, ever on the alert to sneak within on one of the rare occasions when the Maid was absent at the canteen.

One day, venturing nearer than usual to the temple, he was startled to see the Maid emerge from the thicket that bordered the trail. "You am on your way to the temple?" she suggested with airy malice.

"I've got to go," he said. "I've got to go." Shep returned sourly. The Maid smiled cunningly. "I wondered when you would come," she said. "But I knew some time I would see you."

Shep, realizing that she purposed to advantage herself of his embarrassment by forcing him to renew his attention to her, refused to be trapped. "How you know that?" he demanded.

"You am here," she reminded him. "I've here for something else," he growled. "Dem niggers wants more prayers from Dawn."

"Since Dawn am Thabo you do a lot for the natives," she observed. "Pigeon say so."

"I'll kill that white swine!" Shep exploded fearfully. "Am you see?" Shep here at the temple.

The men took leave of each other with assurance that they probably would meet in Africa again. Tom presented himself to the recruiting officer and was speedily accepted. He was assigned to a regiment which was scheduled to depart for the front within forty-eight hours. Aboard the boat he heard his name called and, turning, beheld Anzac, looking sheepish in a new uniform. "Well, here I am after all," said the Australian. "Anyway, I got some good roast beef and ale last two days. After such a holiday I'm ready for a little war."

Alone of the natives the Maid of Malungu was without fear of Shep. Once she had loved him in a rather remote way. It was his position among the blacks that attracted her to him, not Shep himself. Shep had returned her affection in a brusque manner, but was too jealous of his power ever to give himself completely to her.

For a time the girl irritated Shep by flirting with the white men at the canteen. As had been the case with Pigeon, many of them suffered whippings for their rendezvous with the girl. Later, however, Shep was content to let the Maid indulge in whatever flirtations she cared to.

Too, the Maid hated Dawn. Before Dawn had been chosen the bride of Malungu the Maid had desired that honor herself. It would have placed her above Shep, and, because she was vengeful, she most ardently longed to be in a position to command him. Instead she now found herself a servant of the women Shep vainly loved—an exalted servant, true, but a servant for all that.

Ever since Dawn's bridal day the Maid had schemed to trap her in violation of her vows. She already was torn with suspicion regarding Dawn's relations with Tom Allen, but she had no way of supporting any charges against her. Tom's departure with the other prisoners had of course balked her plan for catching them together. And since Dawn was too dejected to seek excitement outside the temple the Maid's crusade was frustrated.

She decided, therefore, to strike through Shep. No longer in fear of Tom, Shep was making frequent visits to the temple. He came at ways on pretence of serving the natives, to ask Dawn as Thabo, to answer their prayers and to bestow upon them the blessings of Malungu. So sarcastically did Shep utter his supplications that Dawn could not fail to understand his threat.

He was implying that he was in a position to discredit her with the natives. Unless she complied with his demands, he hinted, he would betray her. The blind, believing natives asked and expected miraculous performances. If Dawn failed to perform these miracles she was therefore less than a goddess and deserving of death.

Always Dawn received Shep solemnly, joined him in his travesty of the jungle religion, and promised to invoke what blessings she could for her people. She never received Shep, however, unless the Maid were present. Almost intuitively she knew the Maid to possess a secret which gave the whip man fear.

Unable to escape the surveillance of the Maid, Shep's irritation grew. Because of Captain Eric's eagerness to remain at peace with the blacks, he relaxed his watch over them. They roamed at will, Shep especially. He took to haunting the jungles near the temple, ever on the alert to sneak within on one of the rare occasions when the Maid was absent at the canteen.

One day, venturing nearer than usual to the temple, he was startled to see the Maid emerge from the thicket that bordered the trail. "You am on your way to the temple?" she suggested with airy malice.

"I've got to go," he said. "I've got to go." Shep returned sourly. The Maid smiled cunningly. "I wondered when you would come," she said. "But I knew some time I would see you."

Shep, realizing that she purposed to advantage herself of his embarrassment by forcing him to renew his attention to her, refused to be trapped. "How you know that?" he demanded.

"You am here," she reminded him. "I've here for something else," he growled. "Dem niggers wants more prayers from Dawn."

"Since Dawn am Thabo you do a lot for the natives," she observed. "Pigeon say so."

upper part of the barn because it was there that the flames seemed to have their beginning. In a few minutes the entire structure was a mass of flames.

CHALFONT, July 3—Approximately 150 persons, including members of two visiting granges and the hostess grange, crowded the Chalfont Grange hall, Monday night, where an interesting program was presented by one of the visiting organizations.

The literary program was presented by members of Richland Grange, while the officers of Franklin Grange, Springtown, occupied the officers' chairs in the Chalfont Grange.

A short business session was held by the Chalfont organization, at which time it was decided to join with the Warrington Farmers' Club in holding a picnic. The date and place will be decided later.

The literary program opened with the song, "It's a Gay Old World," followed by a monologue, "Cutting Tommy Watson's Hair," by Margaret Richmond.

Jacob M. Landis presented the first discussion of the evening, when he gave a short talk on the beauties of Bucks County. "Too many people," he said, "do not appreciate the beauty of Bucks county. They go far away from home to see places and things which will not equal some of the beauty spots in our own county."

The second discussion of the evening was presented by Stella Oberholzer, who spoke on the question, "Using Our Leisure Time." It was suggested that all take time for recreation. The speaker explained that persons employed in offices and other places where not much physical exertion is required should have recreation which requires physical exercises, but persons whose work demands physical exertion should obtain their recreation through reading or in some other way in which they can relax.

Coast Guard Cook Is Versatile Sailor

POINT REYES, Cal., July 3—(INS)—When you've done talking of versatility, just turn to William P. MacLeod, cook at the Point Reyes Coast Guard station.

William, from Michigan, took to the sea from Seattle at the age of 16, became one of the best topsailmen on the Pacific Coast, spent six years at Point Barrow, at the "top" of Alaska, on one whaling trip, and visited every port of call known to man on others.

Now, according to the guardsmen, he can—

Carve a ship model better than any artist.

Braid canvas whatnots that would put any woman tatter to shame.

Stage a one-man concert with his mandolin, harmonica and horn that would make Paul Whiteman weep with envy.

Build radio sets that bring in even far Madrid so vividly you can hear the bulls roar in the bull rings.

Entertain you by the hour with thrilling tales of every clime and give you a souvenir of every yarn.

Cook like mother never could and—will wonders never cease?—build sea sleds from the ground up.

His latest sled, which would be quite an accomplishment in any plant is made of the finest woods, with ship-shape inter-lappings of canvas and powered by a new Le-Rhone, nine cylinder French military motor which drives an eightfoot propeller.

"Lonesome?" inquire the guardsmen, "why we've got everything when we have Will MacLeod."

Mrs. Andrew Carnahan, of Morrisville, has been spending several days with her relative, Mrs. D. O. Taylor, of Radcliffe street.

To be hurried means soon to be worried.

EMILLE

Mrs. James Harris, was a Sunday caller of Mrs. Eifinger, of Edgely, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harris were recent callers at Woodbourne.

Mrs. W. W. Blinn, is slowly gaining strength. She had as callers, the past week, Mrs. Lewis V. Cox, Mrs. John Bruce, Mrs. William Rockhill, Mrs. T. Elias Paul, Mrs. Charles Bruce, Mrs. William Shoemaker, and Miss Anne Ettinger, of Emille, Mrs. Leo Lynn, and Mrs. George Garretson, Emille; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ellis, and children, of Whitehorse.

Girls Find Holdup Very "Thrilling"

CLEVELAND, July 3—(INS)—Despite the fact that they were robbed of $600, Miss Elsie Pohovic, 16, and Miss Antoinette Humar, 15, enjoyed being held up in a 152nd Street restaurant. "It was thrilling," they agreed.

CAN THE WETS EXPLAIN THIS?

By some unaccountable stretch of the imagination, wet propagandists point to the much greater percentage of crime in the U. S. as compared with England, as a great evil result of Prohibition. It is a far-fetched theory as every thinking man knows. Why not consider a comparison of fatalities from motor car accidents between the two countries as an index to the benefits of Prohibition? In England there was one such death 200,000 at England's rate of fatalities, last year for every 118 cars as against one death for every 1,121 cars in the U. S. Wet England has nearly 10 times as many fatal car accidents as we have, a very large per cent of them caused by drunkenness. There were 21,160 deaths from motor traffic accidents in this country last year. There would have been more than 200,000 at England's rate of fatalities. —Capper's Weekly.—(Adv.)

Herr Max Sails for Fatherland

Max Schmeling, newly-crowned world's heavyweight champion, sails aboard the S. S. Bremen for Germany for a brief visit with his mother. Shown with Maxie is his manager, Joe Jacobs, plus the ever-present cigar. Schmeling is carrying the diamond belt emblematic of the championship.

SORRY SHE DID NOT KNOW OF KONJOLA SOONER

Lancaster Lady Tells How New and Different Medicine Gave Relief to Her and Her Sister

MISS LILLIAN SNYDER

What could be wiser than to profit by the experiences of those, who to their everlasting joy, put Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, to the test? Read what Konjola means to Miss Lillian Snyder, 412 Howard avenue, Lancaster, Pa., who says:

"I am more thankful for Konjola than any medicine I have ever taken. I had suffered from a nervous condition for more than two years, everything annoying me. My stomach gave me trouble, too, with bloating after every meal. I tried many medicines, but found no relief. My sister had taken Konjola with splendid results, and she advised me to give it a trial. Konjola did what all else I tried failed to do, and I am sorry that I did not know of this wonderful medicine two years ago. Think of the suffering I could have escaped!"

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve deadening drugs, no heart depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients. Konjola is indeed a medicine for all the family. Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

FASTEST RACES EXPECTED
AT LANGHORNE ON "4TH"

LANGHORNE, July 2.—The fastest competition that ever assembled on a dirt track in the East will be seen in action tomorrow on the Langhorne Speedway when the leading automobile speed artists of the country will compete in the events of the day.

At least fifteen of the thirty-five car entries are capable of taking their pilots around the oval in near record time. Dark horses galore loom as the entry list is scanned.

Bob Robinson, who last Sunday established a new national record for a half-mile banked dirt track when he turned the Atlanta, Ga., speedway in a great mile, stands out as one of the favorites to cop the 100-mile event tomorrow afternoon.

Others of the prominent runners-up for public favor are Al Stewart, of Morristown, N. J., who will pilot the Duesenberg formerly driven to many victories by Fred Winnall; Lou Shingle, of Phoenixville, who was a winner at Woodbridge, N. J., board speedway.

Deacon Litz, Fred Frame, Frank Farmer, Gordon Condon, Rick Decker and Robinson are expected to take their first laps of the track this afternoon to feel out the course and their motors.

Racing activities tomorrow will start at 10 a. m. with the consolation carded to get underway at 2 p. m. and the feature event of 100 miles at 3 p. m.

BASEBALL

The Sons of Italy will play the strong Holy Name Catholic Club tomorrow at Sullivan's field at 3:30 p. m.

DELIVER MATERIAL

Material is being delivered at Green Lane for the construction of the underpasses beneath the railroad tracks and the elimination of the grade crossing at that point.

ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony LaPolla, of Wood street, had as Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boscarelli and daughters, Grace and Josephine, of Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Rogers, of Burlington.

$100 Stolen From Elks' Home Here During Night

The Elks Home, Radcliffe street, was entered sometime during the night, between midnight and eight this morning, and about $100 was taken from the cash register.

The thief or thieves had also looked through desks, evidently with the hope of finding additional money. Nothing else was stolen as far as could be learned.

Entrance to the home was gained through an unlocked window on the lower side of the building. Police were notified and are working on the case.

Miss Laura Schaffer, of Lansdale, recently spent two days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith, of Walnut and Wilson streets.

Two Big Innings Mean
Defeat for St. Ann's

"Saints" field. Final tabulations were:

In the fourth the Federals scored nine times, every man crossing the plate before an out was made. In the fifth, three runs counted.

Before the upturns in the fourth and fifth innings, the Dorrance street boys played half of championship caliber and with Whyno feeding the first-half champs his hooks in fine fashion it looked as if the tail-enders were going to put one over on the Federals. In the first three innings the Federals made but two hits off Whyno's delivery.

The winners filled the bases in the first, only to be shut out when Mulligan was retired on an easy out. One man reached base in the second but was stranded. Cochrane got on via Oriola's error in the third and then Barrett was passed. This looked bad for Whyno with no one gone. Riola then lined what looked to be a safe hit to left field. Gilardi came up from nowhere and stabbed the ball with his gloved hand and then followed with a rifle throw to Pieo to double Cochrane off second. Massilla then committed an error on Wilkinson's roller and when Barrett tried to score he was pinched at the plate, getting Whyno out of a terrible hole.

For the St. Ann's side of the story: After an uneventful first, Roe doubled to begin the second; Oriola struck out but DiTanna followed with a single to center and Roe scored. This was the only St. Ann's run of the contest. In the following frame the tail-enders filled the bases but did not score. Whyno led off with a single; Gilardi fled out to third; Pieo fled to right; Missera hit an easy grounder to short, who threw to first but DeRisi dropped the ball and all runners were safe. Roe was hit with a pitched ball and Oriola grounded to Wilkinson for the third out.

Then came the big bombardment off Whyno and his mates who seemed to collapse under the strain of the first three innings.

Mike Riola was the star of the game in the field. He handled six chances without an error and made several nice throws to retire runners. For the "Saints" Roe was the fielding star. Massilla made his league debut in St. Ann's uniform and was very impressive. He led the St. Ann's batters with two out of three and retired two men in the field.

The game in under protest by the St. Ann's manager, who claims that the manager of the Federals did not put any new balls in at the start of the contest. According to the rules of the Bristol Twilight League two new balls must be furnished by the home team before every game.

Declaration of Independence

IN CONGRESS JULY 4, 1776

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.—We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.—That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.—That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.—He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.—He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.—He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.—He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.—He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.—He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected;—whereby the legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.—He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.—He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws, for establishing Judiciary powers.—He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.—He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.—He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our Legislatures.—He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to Civil power.—He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our Laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:—For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:—For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:—For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:—For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:—For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury:—For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:—For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:—For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:—For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.—He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.—He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the Lives of our people.—He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous age, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.—He has constrained our fellow-citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.—He has excited domestic Insurrections amongst us and has endeavored to bring on the Inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. In every stage of these Oppressions we have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War; in Peace, Friends.—

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do.—And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Women is Doctor and Cook on World Tour

University Graduate and Comrades Make Long Cruise to Get Material for Books.

LENORE COOK, and 40 FOOT TWO-MASTER "SWORDFISH" IN CHICAGO, July 3.—How many American flappers would care to essay the long, hazardous journey Lenore Cook is about to embark upon?

Lenore, a painter and writer, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin only a few years ago, will sail shortly with four men on a three-year-long world cruise on a 40-foot two-masted schooner.

Lenore will double as ship's cook and doctor. One of the four-man crew is her husband, a graduate of Northwestern University's School of Journalism, and an amateur photographer of note.

"The Swordfish," their little schooner, will set sail for Bermuda soon and thence go through the Panama Canal. Cook and her companions hope to Pointing its nose across the Pacific it will traverse thousands of leagues of blue water until it reaches the shores of New Zealand and Australia on the other side of the world.

From those distant lands it will attempt a northern passage through the Malay archipelago and Suez Canal. It will touch at ports in Greece and Italy and after passing through the Straits of Gibraltar, will proceed up the coasts of Spain and France.

After leisurely taking in the sights of the Old World the party will embark for the east coast of the United States and down the St. Lawrence River, through the Great Lakes. Mrs.

Cook and her companions hope to reach Chicago in time for the Centennial Exposition in 1933.

Besides the Cooks, the little vessel's crew includes Earl Evans, who played a sterling brand of football at Harvard University; Paul, his brother, who also shone on the gridiron as a member of the Drake eleven; and Donald Dickinson, twenty-one years old, and a recent graduate of St. John's Military Academy.

Earl Evans will be captain; Paul, ship's engineer, and young Dickinson will be radio operator on the "Swordfish."

Both Cook and his wife expect to write books describing the adventures of their dangerous voyage.

Tuning in on the Talkies

ONE idea of useless effort is the time girls who wear tights in the movies consume in making-up their faces.

"Noah's Ark" having been made into a movie, the talkies are ripe for "The Tower of Babel."

Most to be dreaded in "The Dancing Peril" is having one's toes stepped on.

Laura Lee "Red Hot Sinners" will not arrive on the screen until cooler weather.

"The Matrimonial Bed" is a French farce and not a furniture display screened as entertainment.

"Chalk Marks" are what young ideas shoot at on fences.

This Week's Short Story "Out All Night" "Good Morning Judge"

Giving Clear Titles "Children of Dreams" will be awakened by the talkies. "Broken Dishes" are going into the movies with sound effect. "The Office Wife" is probably a stenographer who married her boss.

Fence-Rail Talkies Farmer Silo says: "Most of these 'parlor jokes' city folks are telling must have come from a billiard parlor."

Mediterranean Architecture Well Expressed

House No. 644

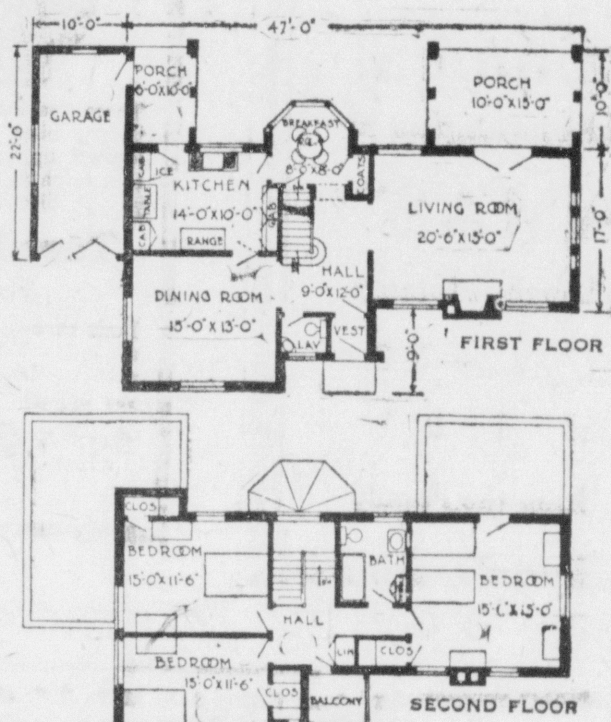

THROUGH centuries of time those countries in the south and west of Europe have developed certain types of houses that suit their particular climate and mode of living. This style of architecture, aptly named Mediterranean, has become very popular in the United States in recent years.

The house shown here has been designed after the fashion of this type and has been cleverly adapted to modern American needs. Color is essential to these homes so the designer has chosen face brick for the exterior walls to get the delicate tints and hues needed to harmonize with the gayly colored awnings, the tile roof, and intricate iron and wooden grilles that give this house its individuality. In the south this house would fit in naturally with the landscape, while in the north it would be well to landscape it to carry out the feeling of the design. An unusual feature of the house is that the rear is almost as attractive as the front. This renders it desirable for locations where appearance of the rear must be carefully considered.

Every room is conveniently located. As one enters the vestibule, he approaches a hall having entrances to the living room, dining room, and the stairs to the second floor. The living room has six windows, three together on the side wall, one on each side of the fireplace on the front wall, and one alongside of the spacious porch at the rear. Casement doors open onto this porch from the living room. The dining room also is spacious and is connected with the kitchen, which is designed with china cabinets in place of pantry. Under the stairs, in a bay at the rear, is as cozy a breakfast room as one could desire. Three windows in this room give a charming view of the garden and early in the morning this room is flooded with sunlight. A porch off of the kitchen, from which easy access to the garage is afforded, completes the first floor.

The second floor has three bedrooms, all corner rooms. Plenty of closet space, cross ventilation in every room, and a centrally located bath are features of the arrangement.

The ceiling heights in this house are 8 feet 6 inches, and the content is 31,000 cubic feet. Broadside to the street, a 70-foot lot would accommodate this house; if garage were placed in the rear, 60 feet would suffice. Endwise to the street, it could be placed nicely on a 50-foot lot.

If you are interested in working drawings for House No. 644, the editor of this paper will gladly tell you where they may be obtained.

Artist Votes Charm and Serenity Real Beauty

Sees Woman as a Beautiful Design, Coloring and Features a Secondary Consideration.

EVELYN BRENT

GRETTA GARBO

By Alice Alden
NEW YORK, July 3.—The beautiful heroine, the gorgeous vamp, the cute in your pet periodical. Yes, there is beauty on parade in every magazine, tary—you do not need to visit the and the men responsible for that parade have very definite and sometimes challenging ideas on beauty. Arthur Williams Brown is one of the leading magazine story illustrators and to him the web and woof of that glamorous fabric we call "beauty" is a matter of great import. He has definite ideas on feminine loveliness and still confesses that he knows very little about it. For the subject is so complex, so bewildering and so debatable that it is extremely difficult to pin any artist down to a deliberate and detached discussion on beauty. Artists trade in beauty, but they fear to talk about their wares.

Talking with Arthur Williams Brown in his workmanlike studio near Central Park in New York, one gets the impression that he is absolutely contemptuous of type in beauty and of measuring that desirable element in any definite fashion. He contends that the principal function of beauty is to please and every human being has his own fixed ideas and ideals about this important subject. Hair, eyes, coloring, figure, all these are a matter of individual appeal. There is but one attribute that makes a universal appeal, and that attribute is grace. Grace of movement, of manner, of carriage, of deportment, that to Arthur Williams Brown represents the acme of beauty, not only academic beauty, but actual living, compelling loveliness. It is the first essential that he seeks in his models. It is the first thing that he notices when he meets or sees women anywhere. It is the grace of woman, he insists, that telegraphs its message to the brain of the beholder, and it is grace that pleases the eye, and holds the attention of the beauty seeker.

The artist sees woman as a beautiful design, with coloring and features a secondary consideration. And that is why many people are rather disappointed when they meet artists' models whose names are bywords in the studios of famous illustrators such as James Montgomery Flagg, Howard Chandler Christy, Dean Cornwell and Arthur Williams Brown. Some of the girls seem drab, almost colorless, but to the artist and the true seeker after beauty these girls represent the ultimate in structural beauty—that is to say, the bone structure and formation of the face and form. This, coupled with an innate grace and an ability to assume postures and characters, is what makes the successful and sought-after model, and it represents the sum total of beauty to the artist.

Types are essential to beauty and each one of Mr. Brown's best models is an individual and highly expressive type. One of his favorite models is Marian Moorehouse. She is famous for her wonderful hands, which are at once the despair and delight of all the famous artists who have immortalized her serene and lovely face with its expression of high-bred aloofness.

Other favorite models are Betty Johnson, who represents the "society" type, and lovely Guirle Andre, whose face has often lured you to read a story which you might otherwise have passed by. These girls to Arthur Williams Brown represent the apogee of beauty, for they not only answer the academic requirements of artists, but are also intensely pleasing to the general public. As far as the stage and movies are concerned Brown thinks the glamorous Greta Garbo and the alluring Evelyn Brent are ideal types, especially as their is a type of beauty that cannot be copied by a horde of movie-mad maidens. Brown thinks that there is little danger of beauty becoming standardized, for the world has come to demand much more than just a pretty face and a perfect form. If it were not so then such types as Greta Garbo would not be capable of winning the attention and homage of the world. Such beauty is international, as true beauty ever is.

George Shephard, of Glendale, R. I., is making an extended visit with friends in town. Mr. Shephard was formerly a resident of Bristol.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wicks and family, of New York City, are visiting Mrs. Wick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hilgendorf, of New Buckley street.

Noted Feminine Explorer Plans New Jungle Trip

Mrs. Akely, Widow of Famous Hunter, Plans for Sixth Voyage to the Uncharted Regions of Central Africa.

AKELEY WITH NATIVE SPEARMEN IN AFRICA

NEW YORK, July 3.—Mrs. Della Akely—silver-haired Queen of feminine explorers—has returned to her New York home just long enough to organize a party of scientists for her sixth plunge into the jungle fastnesses of Central Africa.

The attractions of the metropolis—magnificent theatres, luxurious hotels and restaurants, the giddy whirl of great cities—cast no spell over this dauntless lady, first wife of the late Carl Akely, the naturalist.

Mrs. Akely would rather blaze a new trail in Africa than listen to the radio and relishes pioneer exploration among the pigmy tribes of Rhodesia above the society of cultured friends. A hairbreath escape from death under the thundering hoofs of a stamped herd of African buffalo and many other hazardous adventures have not slaked her insatiable thirst for penetrating jungles.

The pigmies—about whom Mrs. Akely is said to know more than any other living white person—will be the subjects of her new expedition. Before she leaves, Mrs. Akely will construct an exact replica of a pigmy village for the edification of American children.

Her last trip was undertaken on behalf of the Brooklyn Children's Museum, and Mrs. Akely went alone. Unaccompanied by Caucasians, she crossed the continent, emerging in Italian Somaliland, to the amazement of Mus-solini's colonial troops there. On her next visit Mrs. Akely will be accompanied by three young scientists, each of whom will aid her investigation of a separate phase of life of the mysterious little blacks. These unique and grotesque fugitives of the Dark Continent are, she says, not becoming extinct, as generally believed. On the contrary they are growing in both numbers and wealth.

However, they are as elusive as ever and shun the sight of whites. On her last expedition Mrs. Akely succeeded in learning much of their customs and language by living with them for several weeks.

Mrs. Akely has little but censure for the commercial motion picture makers and big game hunters who today are overrunning Africa. They are costing the white race the respect of the natives, she declares. White inhabitants dare not go out unarmed at night because of the animosity aroused among the blacks by these people.

Mrs. Akely also charged that the movie-men distort the natural life of Africa and stage sensational scenes to thrill civilized audiences by paying the tribe chiefs to cooperate with them.

Her next expedition will cost about $150,000. Mrs. Akely hopes to get the money from a museum or some philanthropist interested in exploration and scientific adventure.

POLLYANNA

A traveling man one night found himself obliged to remain in a small town on account of a washout on the railroad caused by the heavy rain, which was still coming down in torrents. The traveling man turned to the waitress with:

"This certainly looks like the flood."

"The what?"

"The flood. You've read about the flood, and the ark landing on Mount Ararat, surely."

"Gee, mister," she returned, "I ain't seen a paper for three days."

It is not true that all the world loves a lover. Only a small portion of it can hardly stand him.

Astronomy Professor—Can you name me a star with a tail?

Student—Sure—Rin-tin-tin.

It is said that when a man is his own lawyer he has a fool for a client. And when he's his own doctor he's liable to have a dead man for his patient.

Friend—"Tell me your secret of success. How have you obtained so many customers in such a short time?"

Grocer—"Well, I got a parrot and I trained it to cry out, 'Oh, isn't she pretty!' every time a lady entered the store."

An ounce of striving is better than a pound of conniving.

"They say if there is anything in a man, travel will bring it out."

"You tell 'em! I found that out my first day at sea."

From our observation some people still use the penny quite extensively.

This world can never be kept clean by people who neglect themselves to scrub their neighbors.

Some people wonder why they don't get on when they are merely trying to get by.

Dora (at bridge party): "Dick is all right if you know how to take him."

Della: "I hate these people who have to be labeled like a bottle of medicine."

Grounded

Two may live on love, but love

Won't live on two bucks a day;

Marriages may be made above, But they break in an earthly way.

Business usually goes where it is solicited and stays where it is well treated.

A doctor won't take medicine. He says that the medical books teach that

It is to give, not take.

The Young Wife: "How do you like the steak, dear?"

Her Husband: "Fine; but where's the gravy?"

"I wondered how soon you'd miss it, you absent-minded boy. You didn't bring a drop with the meat."

Sunset is the Burglars' Sunrise!

Sunset is the burglars' sunrise. Your night—their day! You're out! They're in! And again you're "out", in more ways than one, unless you Aetna-ize! An Aetna Residence Burglary Policy not only reimburses you for any and all articles stolen, but pays the bill for any damage done to your premises or property by those who come to steal.

Now is the "open season" for burglars! Now is the time to get in touch with us—before the burglar "touches you!" Tear this out as a reminder to phone!
